HAMLET: THE MEME EDITION

FEBRUARY 9, 2014 | LEONARDOFLORES

This Twitter-based production of Hamlet is the culmination of a series of assignments in the Literature in Digital Media class (English 3212, Spring 2014). A brief summary of the activities: the class was divided into 5 groups and assigned different Hamlet film adaptations. The students in each group were assigned to different acts and had the task of creating memes following the following constraints:

- Memes should:
 - use an image from the film (edited, if so desired)
 - use text from Hamlet
 - have your own text
 - strive for humor or wit, or some thought-provoking observation about the play, characters, situation, etc.

The students presented their meme-based play reconstructions in class in Pecha Kucha style presentations and after some feedback were prepared for the week-long (February 3-7, 2014) Twitter performance of Hamlet: The Meme Edition.

And without further ado, I am proud to present the tweeted memes, roughly in the order in they were tweeted.
